Volunteer Thanks and Athlete Decision

Name the service without selling an athletic favor.

Gratitude for adult help must not replace the grounds for a child's opportunity.

Hypothetical example: a coach thanks a parent for an approved supply pickup and explains the child's practice role from the team's normal criteria.

01 Thank the work that was actually done

Name the parent's actual completed contribution.

Volunteer task actually completed

Appropriate recognition choice

Details needing permission

02 Keep the child's athletic decision on its own grounds

Separate recognition from the child's athletic criteria.

Athlete decision at issue

Real criterion or program arrangement

Favor not part of the thank-you

03 Make gratitude fair to other families

Check the thank-you against other families' arrangements.

Optional or required adult contribution

Quieter work to acknowledge accurately

Unsupported family comparison

04 Repair a favor you implied

Correct any favor the staff implied.
