Psalm 121 Reading and Present Responsibility

Bring the concern without inventing tomorrow.

Trust in God does not require a parent to pretend to know the next result.

Hypothetical example: a family reads Psalm 121 before a difficult school week, names its concern in prayer, and confirms the next day's actual arrangements.

01 Read the whole psalm before choosing a slogan

Read and notice the psalm's words.

Passage read together

Who speaks in the opening

Description of God you noticed

Word the child asked about

02 Name the concern without making it a forecast

Name the family concern honestly.

Actual present concern

Facts the family knows

Future detail nobody knows

Question to leave open

Psalm 121 Reading and Present Responsibility / Review & follow-through

03 Distinguish trust from a promised result

Separate trust from your prediction.

Prediction an adult has made

What the text actually says

Assurance and outcome kept separate

Question for church discussion

04 Complete the responsibility that belongs to today

Pray and complete a present responsibility.

Prayer in your own words

Present adult responsibility

Child's suitable next duty

Time to revisit the concern
