Ordinary Team Duty Rotation

A shared duty needs a taught finish and an actual turn.

Adults remain responsible for making suitable team work clear and honestly distributed.

Hypothetical example: the coach rotates an approved marker-return job, checks current attendance and records an adult-owned adjustment rather than leaving it to the usual helper.

01 Choose work that actually belongs to young athletes

Define one program-approved ordinary team duty.

Suitable ordinary duty

Adult responsibility excluded

Program arrangement to honor

02 Teach the finish before distributing turns

Teach the task's actual completion standard.

Starting point and permitted items

Visible completion standard

Question needing clarification

Ordinary Team Duty Rotation / Review & follow-through

03 Make the turn record visible to the responsible people

Assign the current turn and appropriate adjustments.

Current assigned athlete or pair

Next turn in the rotation

Absence or suitability adjustment

04 Close the job instead of silently passing it to the usual helper

Check who completed the handoff.

Work actually completed

Unfinished part and responsible adult

Change needed before the next turn