Check the Door Emergency Responders Would Actually Use - working notes

One situation. Clear facts. An honest next step.

Confirm the venue's emergency address, access route and assigned guide through the approved emergency action plan. A familiar building name does not establish that responders can reach the correct practice area.

Hypothetical example: Practice moved to a separate room, but emergency directions still point to the main gym. Staff confirm the correct route with the venue and update the approved information.

01 Name the practice location in terms a responder can use

Read the venue-specific emergency location and access information.

Session's actual location

Approved address or map reference

Room or entrance detail

02 Verify the route with someone who has actual authority

Confirm the real route and access arrangements with the authorized venue contact.

Authorized confirmation source

Access condition during practice

Unresolved route obstacle

03 Assign the guide without abandoning the children

Verify the responder-guide role and continuing supervision duties.

Emergency caller role

Responder-guide role

Other duties maintained by whom

04 Recheck after a location or access change

Correct changed directions through the approved plan.

Location or construction change

Approved update and owner
